PROF. GOLDWIN SMITH.

What the English Press Think of His Attack on the National Policy.

His Claim that Commercial Union is the Only Solution of the Difficulty.

A London special to the Toronto Mail says: "Several of the leading provincial papers have articles on Professor Goldwin Smith's letter to the Standard, which is attracting profound attention here. After describing the geographical position of the several Canadian provinces, which are divided from each other by natural barriers, and stating that closer economical relations exist between the provinces and the United States territory adjoining them than between the provinces themselves, the letter goes on to say: "Up to this time, however, statesmanship has been struggling, in the supposed interest of the Empire, and at the same time in the interest of a political party here, to weld together what nature has severed, and to divide what she has united. The two instruments of this policy have been the political railroad and the Custom House. In the Intercolonial Canada has been made to sink forty millions of dollars, and in the C. P. R. she has been made to sink a hundred millions, not a cent of which in either case will she ever see again in any shape. As to the protective tariff, you will hardly need to be told that it is a dead failure. Canada, as a comparatively small country, with a limited range of production, feels the full disadvantages of the protective system, which are largely neutralized by the immense range of

in the case of the United States. One of the advocates of the policy admitted the other day that the capital invested in our protected manufactures, were protection withdrawn, would not now be worth more than a third of its par value, and at the same time that Canada was unable to make dry goods, which would for a moment bear competition with those made in the United States; so that two-thirds of the interest on protected capital must be paid by public taxation, and we are not only prevented from selling in a good market, but forced to buy in a bad one. All the protected interests are flocking to Ottawa and assuring the Finance Minister that they cannot get on without more protection, and another copious source of intrigue and corruption is opened in our legislation and elections." After a reference to the former tax on coal and to the duties on breadstuffs designed to force Ontario flour into the Maritime Provinces, the letter proceeds: "Nature and man are now in revolt against this system, which will soon have no supporters outside a circle of politicians, except the protected manufacturers, and not all of these, for the more enterprising of them are ready to take their chance in the great and highly protected market of the United States. The revolt will spread. Commercial union is rapidly becoming the question of the day; while Manitoba is in arms against the monopolist privileges of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and bent on opening up communications with the United States instead of being condemned, as the separatist policy condemns her, for her produce but Montreal, which is 1,500 miles off, and is not a winter port. The great national industries of the country are not organized for political action like the political manufacturers, and are slow to move, but when they do move their interests must prevail. The protectionist manufacturers appeal to our loyalty and contend that while it is right to exclude British goods by protective duties, it would be a breach of our duty to the Empire to discriminate against them, as we should by entering into a zollverein with the United States; but the exclusion surely is the real injury. Discrimination is little more than an ill-sounding name." After some observations with regard to the abandonment of the commercial unity of the Empire in the case both of Canada and Australia, the letter concludes with these words: "Though I am not what is called an Imperialist, I would forfeit all I possess rather than vote for what I believe to be really injurious to England; but I am thoroughly convinced that the opening of free trade between Canada and the United States not only would do England no injury, but would, in the end, most certainly redound to her advantage. At all events, it is desirable that you should view the question in its full extent and in all its bearings; that in censuring Canada for the imposition of the iron duty you should be aware that the duty is part of a system which pleads Imperial policy as its justification, and that the mother country and the colony, in this hour of peril, should run no risk of quarrelling in the dark."

TO HAVE NO OUTLET

"ERRARE HUMANUM EST."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—Will you allow me a little space in your valuable paper to correct a slight misapprehension respecting our claims to "Academic honors," which seems to have got afloat in Victoria? We are not, could not be, and I need scarcely say, have never represented ourselves to be "Royal Academicians," my husband being debarred from that honor by his nationality as a Frenchman, and I, alas! by my sex; no woman-painter ever having been admitted to the membership of that august body with the exception of Angelica Kauffman, the friend and pupil of Sir Joshua Reynolds—the first President. But our name will be found in the Royal Academy catalogues as exhibiting in 1877, 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881 and 1882. Since the latter year we have been traveling in America, and have not sent to the Royal Academy. Obediently yours,
G. M. DE L. AUBINIERE.
Rocosbella, July 6, 1887.

The Canadian Pacific authorities have been signifying their intention of organizing, at the beginning of August, an excursion to the Northwest for members of the clergy exclusively.

The late Mr. Gault, M. P., has left a fortune of nearly five million dollars to be divided among his family.

The government has dispatched secret customs officers to points along the Ontario frontier near Detroit, to investigate alleged charges of the refusal of the American authorities to prevent laborers resident in Canada to work in the States.

Senator Clemow says the contract for the construction of the Northwest Central will finally be awarded on Wednesday.

NOTES FROM OREGON.

What a Former British Columbian Thinks of the State—An Interesting Trip Hence.

ALBANY, Or., July 1.—On the 22nd of June I left the hospitable shores of British Columbia, which had been my home for some years. It was with pain that I saw its blue shores receding from the view; indeed I think I felt more sorrow than I did when I left my home in the east for the unknown Pacific coast. But once under way the ever changing panorama that passed before my admiring eyes drew my mind irresistibly to itself.

Oh! that sail down the Sound on that early summer day was a poem in colors! I ensconsed myself on a pile of sail in the bow, and with my hat tilted over my brows, and my eyes half shut, I drank in the beauty of a dream of enchantment. The cool breeze counteracted the heat of the sun; and then the picture! The deep blue water ruffled no more than a meadow lake; the dark blue forest and in the back ground; the serrated range of the Cascades, with its gigantic outposts at either end, Baker and Tacoma, while behind me, whenever I summoned energy enough to look in that direction, rose the rugged mass of the Olympian mountains.

On my way south I stopped over night at Tacoma, the N. P. terminus. They were making great preparations for the "glorious Fourth." Every available spot was being turned into accommodation for visitors. While there I met Prof. Tait, formerly of the Collingwood, Ont. Collegiate Institute, and now of the Protestant Episcopal College here. He is doing good work and under his supervision the school is rapidly advancing both in members and in scholarship. He says that a great number of the most responsible offices on the Northern Pacific Railway are held by Canadians. Indeed it is a sure thing that one never hears of a Canadian defaulter. Many Canadians are men of standing in the terminal city of whom I believe is due a good deal of its push and energy.

The farmers along the Cowlitz and Columbia river bottoms are having a hard time of it at present. The Columbia is very high and that has backed up the Cowlitz till there is a regular flood. In the lower part of Kalama village the water is several feet deep.

Where I now am is the very centre of the far famed Willamette valley; not great seas of land like the prairies of the central states and the Northwest; but a delightful mixture of bush and prairie land. On first view one would say this is fairy land, so beautiful is it; but on closer examination it will be found to have its drawbacks. One is the exceeding dryness of the summers. Last year potatoes were $2 per bushel on this account and this year the wheat and hay crops are very light. The thirty to fifty bushels of wheat per acre which one hears of when away from Oregon dwindles to sixteen to twenty when close at hand. Considering all things, I think the farmers of British Columbia have fallen upon as pleasant places as any I have seen down here.

Albany is a pretty little town, where the Calipooia and Willamette meet. It has been a sleepy little country town till lately, but has been waked up by the building of the Oregon Pacific Railroad. This runs now from here to Yaquina Bay, on the other side of the coast range, whence a line of steamers run to San Francisco. The railroad is being built from here easterly to meet the Chicago and Northwestern at Boise City, Idaho. This makes Albany the junction of the O. & C. R. R. and the O. P. R. R., and consequently property is going up with a rush. Dr. Ellis, the most prominent physician here, and Chas. Curran, real estate agent, with many other prominent citizens, are Canadians. R.

POLICE COURT.

(Before E. Johnson, Q. C., S. M.)

Ah Noon and Ah Kin were charged with being in possession of an accordeon, knowing the same to have been stolen. The charge against Ah Noon was withdrawn. Ah Kin was remanded till Friday.

Mrs. R. Green, summoned to answer to the charge of killing chickens with intent to steal, did not appear. Mrs. Quinn, the party laying the information, not appearing, the charge was dismissed.

Andrew White was charged with being in possession of smuggled goods. Supt. Bloomfield said the accused had been arrested last night on the supposition that he was in possession of smuggled goods, but it had been found that he was not guilty of any offence against the law, excepting that requiring the clearance of exported goods, and would therefore ask for his discharge. The 100 pounds of opium found in his possession would have to be handed over to the customs.

MARINE.

The bark L. Derby passed down at midnight last night in tow of the Pilot with a cargo of lumber for Valparaiso.

The ship Riverside is loaded at Moodyville for San Diego, Cal., and the bark Pacific Slope is also at Moodyville loaded for Sidney, N. S. W. Both waiting for tugs.

Mining in the Selkirks.

The Kamloops Sentinel is of the opinion that the Illecillewaet has evidently a golden future before it. Mr. G. B. Wright has in the neighborhood of fifty men working in his mine at that place, and it is said they are striking it rich. Mr. Wright has introduced some of the most modern and effective machinery, and ore-crushing operations will be commenced in a few days. The mines are rich in gold, silver and grey copper. It is said that $1,500 to the ton has been assayed. The formation is mostly slate and the ledges well defined. Wood, water, and transportation are all at hand, and there is little doubt that the mines will pan out well.

Attractions at Fulton Market.

Residents of the city, as well as visitors, should not miss the opportunity of visiting Fulton Market, Johnson street, where are to be seen a collection of monkeys, trained; speaking parrots, mocking birds, English thrushes, black birds and sterlings, magpies, and many other species of the singing and feathered tribe. Tourists in want of souvenirs can do no better than give this place a call.

A Political Crisis Probable in England—Matthews to be Sacrificed.

Latest from Zanzibar—The Emperor William at Ems—Gossip.

A POLITICAL CRISIS.

LONDON, July 5.—In the Commons to-night Campbell Bannerman, formerly Chief Secretary for Ireland, gave notice that he would introduce amendments on the second reading of the Irish land bill. No land measure would be satisfactory which backed such revision of judicial rents as would not result in a fall in prices. An animated discussion took place over the conduct of the police in arresting a young man named Cass, who is of pure repute as an improper character. The debate resulted in defeat of the government by a vote of 153 to 148. Criticisms of members were directed less against the police authorities than against Matthews, Home Secretary, who was accused of shielding the officials. A number of Liberal-Unionists voted with the majority. It is expected that the defeat of the government will lead to the resignation of Matthews.

WHITE ELEPHANTS.

LONDON, July 3.—Vanity Fair says: The Queen of Hawaii undoubtedly intended to pay our Queen and our nation a great national compliment by coming to be present at the jubilee; but undoubtedly the court officials find Her Majesty somewhat of a white elephant on their hands. For instance, at Buckingham Palace, the King of Saxony was blandly informed by the court officials that he was requested to take the Queen of Hawaii Islands in to supper. "The devil I am," brusquely replied His Majesty. "I'll see everybody in—first before I take a black woman into supper. The King was accordingly assigned the Queen of Belgians, and the Duke of Edinburgh had to sacrifice himself on the altar of patriotism. The sister of the Queen of Hawii, Princess Liliokolani, is now styled the "Princess Lily of Killarney" by the people, who are helpless when they try to pronounce her name.

SERIOUS WAR PROBABLE IN AFGHANISTAN.

LONDON, July 4.—Advices from Cabul say that the Ameer, suspecting the fidelity of the Janishedies, near Herat, owing to visits of a Russian emissary, imprisoned the Khan, and threatened to execute him unless his tribe send to Cabul some of their chiefs as hostages. A number of head men of the Janishedies have gone over to the Russians. The forts at Herat have been repaired, and the crops around the city harvested.

JOHN BRIGHT ON IRELAND.

LONDON, July 4.—John Bright has written a letter in which he says that Ireland is not neglected, but that good measures in relation to that country passed since 1880 have been obstructed by a conspiracy deriving its funds and inspiration from American enemies of England. But for the conspiracy, he says, the great land bill of 1881 would have made Ireland tranquil.

IN FAVOR OF GRANTING APPEALS.

LONDON, July 4.—Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, replying through his secretary to Healy's charge of breach of faith in connection with the crimes bill, says the government is still in favor of granting an appeal from sentence in all cases; that he found the law already existing fully adequate, and further legislation was not needed.

THE EARL OF WILTSHIRE.

LONDON, July 4.—John Paulet, Marquis of Winchester and Earl of Wiltshire and Premier Marquis of England, is dead.

A SENSATIONAL STORY.

PARIS, July 4.—Le Figaro asserts that the heir of a great kingdom, meaning Crown Prince Frederick William of Prussia, has visited the Count of Paris at Sheenhouse, for the purpose of warning him that the Flouquet-Boulanger ministry would mean war between France and Germany within a month after their taking office, and that the policy adopted by the monarchy party should be based on that warning.

Advices from Zanzibar announce that the Portuguese have surrendered to the British and German Consuls. The Sultan's steamer Kolwa, seized during the dispute between Zanzibar and Portugal, concerning the claims of the latter to Cape Delgado. Portugal will also pay Zanzibar an indemnity.

Emperor William has arrived at Ems, accompanied by Count Lesendorff. He was driven in an open carriage through Bahnhans Strasse, Kurans. Bahnhans Strasse was gaily decorated, and throughout the drive the Emperor was everywhere greeted with most enthusiastic cheers.

In the trial of Leipsic German officials who are accused of furnishing the French Government with information regarding the military situation of Germany, the prosecution has closed its case. The evidence is strong against Klein and Greber. According to sworn statements of the war authorities the prisoners divulged to the French government information of a character which greatly endangered the position of Germany. The counsel on both sides will begin their arguments on Wednesday.

The Chamber of Deputies by a vote of 467 to 41 adopted a clause of the military bill providing for three years service and suspending discussion of the bill. The Chamber also voted 527 to 5 the urgency for a proposal to raise to seventy francs per hectalitre the duty on foreign alcohol.

AMERICAN NEWS.

MORTALITY IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The mortality in this city begins to excite alarm. To-day the deaths of 208 were recorded.

DEATH OF MARY RICHARDSON.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Mrs. Mary A. Richardson, the widow of Captain Wm. Richardson, the founder of San Francisco, died at San Quentin yesterday. She was the daughter of Lieutenant Martinez, commandant of the Mexican garrison at the Presidio, having been born there in 1809.

WILL NOT COMPETE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The Southern Pacific Company has no intention of meeting the Canadian Pacific's new round trip rates. T. H. Goodman, General Passenger Agent of that company said today that the foreign road was not being fought by the Southern Pacific on passenger business, whatever they might do on freight business.

CANADIAN DESPATCHES.

A GAY DECEIVER.

MONTREAL, July 3.—A fashionably dressed fellow, resembling a university student, was arrested yesterday on a charge preferred by Mr. Iles, manager of the Windsor hotel, of forgery and fraud. The young man, about a week ago, registered as T. P. Hall, of New York. He lived high, spent lots of money and entertained like a lord. On Monday he informed the manager his name was not Hall but Walker Blaine, that he was the oldest son of James G. Blaine; that his object in registering as he did was to avoid newspaper reporters and interviewers. He showed letters purporting to be from Blaine and a draft for $1,000. This he drew against the Bank of Montreal. He gave checks signed "Walker Blaine," which were cashed at the hotel, and he purchased largely of jewelry throughout the city. Altogether his frauds will foot up $2,000.

The fellow was identified by a New Yorker here as Herbert Taylor, son of Evan Taylor, Worcester, Massachusetts. As soon as he saw the game was up he prepared to skip, taking passage for Europe. His flight was nipped in the bud and now he is behind the bars.

JEWELLERS ASSIGN.

MONTREAL, July 5.—Beaudry & Co., jewelers, made an assignment to-day. Their liabilities are said to be large.

THREE BOYS DROWNED.

FENELON FALLS, Ont., July 4.—Three brothers named Moffett, 12, 15 and 17 years, were drowned to-day while in bathing in Burnt river.

OUR GREAT INTERIOR.

Happenings Beyond the Cascades—Interesting and Gossipy News.

(Condensed from the Kamloops Sentinel.)

Prof. Fowler, of Queen's College, Kingston, was in town botanizing during the week.

Miss M. Dallas left town on Monday evening for Victoria to attend the Provincial Teachers' Examinations to be held at that city.

The Hon. Mr. Davie, Attorney-General and Premier of the province, is in town.

The Thompson river has fallen about eight feet during the week, and is still subsiding. It is hoped that the inconvenience of high water is now over for the season.

Mr. H. Hagan, from Okanagan Mission, is in town, and reports mining to be very active in the Okanagan district. Several mining claims have recently been taken up on Mission Creek, and the prospects are said to be of the most encouraging character.

A heavy hailstorm, lasting about 15 minutes, at Kamloops, passed over the town on Sunday last. No serious damage resulted from its visitation.

Passing through Spallumcheen the middle of the present week a visit was made to the ranches of Squire Graham and others, and the growing crops were found to present the appearance of a very promising harvest.

Priest Valley is progressing favorably. The Hudson's Bay Company propose opening a store this season, which, with the two stores now at that place, will cause a healthy competition.

Mr. McEdwards is now in full charge of the Victoria hotel and is quite popular with the traveling public.

The fine new residence of Squire Wood at Winfield Lodge, is attractive and comfortable as a home.

Crops throughout Mission Valley look well, and pleasant spirits prevail among the people generally.

The new gold discovery at Mission Creek is causing a number of parties to take up claims, and placer mining is becoming extensive.

A strong St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society has been formed at Kamloops. The following officers were elected: Chief, Jas. McIntosh; First Chieftain, Dr. Simon J. Tunstall; Second Chieftain, Donald C. McGillivray; Third Chieftain and Treasurer, Hugh McCutcheon; Fourth Chieftain and Secretary, J. M. Macdonald; Chaplain, Rev. John Chisholm.

Mr. M. Sullivan, an old timer of British Columbia, who has been in the country for 25 years, and is now a successful stock raiser on the North Thompson, left on a visit to his friends in the Eastern States. Before leaving Kamloops he contracted to have a residence built for him in the town. "Coming events cast their shadows before."

A sad accident happened to Mr. Walter Humfrey, of Grand Prairie, whereby he had his leg so badly crushed that he was brought to the Royal Hospital the same evening for treatment.

The examination of the Cache Creek school took place last Friday in the presence of a number of visitors. The pupils were put through their exercises by the teacher, Mr. Clemitson, whose wife also presided at the organ. The pupils acquitted themselves in a satisfactory manner. They were addressed by Mr. Chas. Semlin, M. P. P., and others. Mr. Clemitson after teaching here successfully for four years has resigned his charge to the regret of the trustees and the parents. Prizes at the close of the examination were awarded to the successful pupils.

Patrick Kelly, of Kamloops, was run over by a team near Kamloops and killed last Tuesday. It is supposed he had been drinking and had laid down on the track to sleep. A freight train passed over his body.

The North Thompson school taught by Miss Dallas was examined on the 17th in the presence of a number of parents and visitors. She was congratulated on the success of her efforts. Addresses were delivered by many of those present to the pupils. Prizes were also awarded.

The Kootenay Uprising.

Dr. Powell has informed the Provincial Government that the commission, consisting of himself, A. W. Vowell, S. M., and Col. Herchimer, of the Mounted Police, has amicably settled the threatened uprising of the Kootenay Indians. Chief Isidore has among other things bound himself to deliver the rescued prisoner Caplan whenever required which obviates the necessity of sending the mounted police into the district. Dr. Powell is en route to Victoria. Mr. Vowell remains at Wild Horse Creek, and Col. Herchimer has returned east.

The Surveyor-General.

Captain R. Deville, Surveyor-General for the Dominion, arrived last night and is a guest at the Driard. His mission to British Columbia at present is in connection with the topographical and block survey parties, several of whom are now at work between Calgary and the coast. He will remain in the province some weeks ere returning to the east.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The Montreal Gazette announces that the government have not yet accepted the resignation of Lieutenant-Governor Masson. Possibly he may be induced to continue in office.

Chief Justice Adam Wilson, of the Common Pleas division of the High Court of Justice of Ontario, intends, it is said, to shortly retire from the bench.

Sir John Macdonald is expected to take a holiday trip soon to England. His presence there might lead to his obtaining some of the jubilee honors that are flying thick in the air.

While 22,000,000 bushels of wheat were cornered in Chicago by speculators 80,000 people in Asia Minor were experiencing a famine. This is a good topic for the George school to work up.

Prior to his departure Sir Charles Tupper was served with notice of a suit for $500 brought against him by Mrs. Bell, wife of a civil servant, for services rendered as a private detective on the Intercolonial six years ago.

Information received from Washington indicates that the interference by American customs officials with Canadians seeking employment in the United States has been prompted by the labor organizations, and not by the American government.

The last budget speech has been printed at the public expense for distribution among members of Parliament and friends of the Government. Sir Charles Tupper seems to be quite proud of his production, for the pamphlet is got up in expensive shape.

It is stated that Mr. W. H. Griffin, deputy Postmaster-General, has been superannuated to make room for a Mr. Pope, a Nova Scotian, who has had no experience in the postal service. Why was Lieut. Col. White, the Secretary of the department, passed over?

The debt of the city of Toronto is $8,000,000. The estimated expenditure this year is $4,125,917, of which it is proposed to borrow $2,305,000. Evidently there are boomsters—discounters of the future—in power at Toronto, and the way they are mortgaging the earnings of the next generation will cause somebody to squeal.

It is not surprising that Sir Charles Tupper prefers the High Commissionership to the portfolio of Minister of Finance. As High Commissioner he draws $10,000 a year, with $3,000 or $4,000 for expenses, and has a palace to live in, whereas as Finance Minister he would receive only $8,000 a year, without any incidentals.

Nearly thirty County Farmers' Institutes in Ontario have pronounced in favor of unrestricted reciprocity with the United States. Only one has gone against the resolution adopted by the Central Institute—that of the County of Dundas, and it qualified its opposition with the admission that greater freedom of trade with the United States would be desirable, and in some respects in the interests of Canadian farmers.

It is likely that Quebec will follow the example of Manitoba, British Columbia and Ontario, and introduce the Torrens system. The Council of the Montreal Board of Trade are advocating its adoption on the ground that the great advantage of the system is that all the titles under it are valid, that by a process as simple as the making out of an ordinary note or bill of sale, real estate can be mortgaged or sold, the whole expense being a small fee to the Master of Titles.

The total value of the goods exported from Canada during the month of May was $5,895,172, of which $35,619,956 was the produce of Canada, and $275,216 the produce of other countries. Of the total exports of Canadian produce $275,005 was the produce of the mine, $317,792 of the fisheries, $1,751,508 of the forest, $1,690,251 animals and their produce, $1,238,975 agricultural produce, $106,280 manufactures and $80,145 miscellaneous articles. The value of goods entered for consumption was $8,720,666. Of this sum the value of dutiable goods was $5,860,898 and the amount of duty paid thereon was $1,720,383.

Next to Queen Victoria, the woman most talked about in England in these jubilee times is Miss Agnata Ramsay, the winner of the first place in the Cambridge classical examination. Miss Ramsay, who is only twenty years old, has distanced all of the male students, although she has studied Greek only four years. Her triumph is not the only female victory in medieval and modern languages, as in the examination Miss Hervey, of Newton College, stands alone in the first class of that institution; Miss Tooke, of Newham, at the head of the second class, and Miss Young, of Girton, at the top of the first class of her college. These achievements, which are likely to lead to the immediate admission of women to the Oxford and Cambridge university degrees, have dealt a staggering blow to the theory tenaciously adhered to in those institutions that the intellect of woman is inferior to that of man.

THE J. C. AYER CASE.

In no case of late years has there been so much interest centered as in the above one during its recent trial in Montreal and Ottawa. The sum involved is in the neighborhood of half a million. The proceedings were opened in Montreal before Chief Justice Sir WILLIAM RITCHIE of the Supreme Court of Canada. Eminent counsel on both sides were engaged. The Exchequer Court then adjourned its sittings to Ottawa, where the hearing of the case was resumed on the 28th ult. The first witness examined there was EVAN UNDERHILL, an employee of the Ayer Co. His testimony went to show that the sarsaparilla mixture put up at St. John's was virtually the same as that manufactured and bottled at Lowell, though some ingredients were added at St. John's with the view of making it appear that the medicine was not imported in a finished state. At St. John's he had full charge of putting up the goods in the years 1881, 1882, 1883 and 1884. He had put through the entries of the company at St. John's. No additions were made to their sarsaparilla ingredient when received from Lowell until early in 1883, when they received a visit from Mr. Ambrose, Customs officer, of Montreal, and mixed about one hundred gallons. The object was to be able to say that they mixed sarsaparilla in Canada. The substances used to add to sarsaparilla were iodine and citrate of iron, which were brought from Montreal. UNDERHILL's examination was not concluded when the court rose. The Customs officials acknowledge that UNDERHILL is the informer. He was dismissed from the employ of the AYER Company in March, 1884, and it is alleged that he gave information to the Montreal Custom's officers partly from motives of revenge and partly from a desire to share in the spoils if the seized goods were confiscated and the AYER Company compelled to pay a fine. Some of the entries which UNDERHILL passed and swore to their correctness he now declares to have been fraudulent. Commenting on the evidence of Mr. O'HARA the Deputy Collector at Montreal, the Star of that city observed that his testimony proved the inherent viciousness of the spoils system as applied to the Customs Department. The prospect of obtaining a share of the seizure puts temptation in the way of Custom House officers. The evidence showed that not only was espionage resorted to to secure the coveted prize, but deceit, trickery and falsehood. Remarks the reverse of complimentary have been made regarding the conduct of special agents of the customs department by the press of that city, for the peculiar manner in which they conduct their business and investigations. The Board of Trade will take the matter under consideration, when it is expected a thorough discussion of the customs regulations will be entered upon with the view of effecting some radical and much to be desired changes in the whole system.

So far as the Victoria office is concerned not a breath of reproach can be uttered against its management. On a recent occasion its affairs were overhauled by officials who came here under disguise, and made a tour of the shops of the city, as well as the warehouses without making themselves known to the resident officials. It has not transpired that a solitary irregularity was discovered by them in connection with the system enforced by the authorities at this port. This is highly creditable to Mr HAMLEY and his assistants. It reflects the greatest credit also on the importers of Victoria. The officials from the east referred to took their departure somewhat reluctantly, their expectations not being realized.

COMMERCIAL UNION AND FARMING.

Principal Brown, of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, discusses the advantages to be derived from Commercial Union through the eastern press. In a recent letter he says that whenever any international question is under public discussion, the rush of thought is invariably in one direction—how will it effect us in worldly substance? With Britain, the States and all other countries, the same feeling has always been uppermost, and now that our folks are warming up to Commercial Reciprocity with neighbors unseparated by nature or art, we hear of nothing else but—the dollar—the dollar. This is genuine average human nature, and it is sure of thorough reciprocation from the States of course. But, should this be all our quest? Is it not as much the duty of statesmen to work for the intellectual and moral welfare of the people as for their bread and safety, and particularly now that they are making progress in their professions? I am much in favor of this Commercial Union says the Professor, but in the growing fever of discussion I beg respectfully to draw the attention of your readers to the thought—will it help to make us better farmers? As I am asking for light, and unprepared as yet to give any on this important point, you will allow these reflections only meantime. (1.) Is it possible that five men can associate with fifty and not get influenced? The American farmer is smarter, has more business tact, and is better at looking ahead than his compeer anywhere. (2.) American farmers are co-operating for the advancement of the profession and with the ultimate view of "running" the whole Union. Canada is more agricultural than they are, and hence the lesson to be drawn, and that would be stimulated by association, is plain enough. (3.) Agricultural colleges, experimental stations, farmers' institutes, clubs, newspapers, professional experts and specialties in agriculture are more per capita than in any other land, and would consequently wave over Canada to her advantage. (4.) Better farming in Canada would be brought about by the inflow of money that seems to lie in many millions unused amongst our neighbors. I could name several cases where already $20 more per acre for farms than the present value has been offered in the event of Commercial Union.

PORT ANGELES.

Victoria's Nearest Neighbor Across the Straits in Washington Territory.

Seat of the Puget Sound Company's Co-operative Colony.

WHERE WILL THE MONEY COME FROM?

Where western cities have been built upon private speculation, the town sites, as wild, unimproved lands, were purchased for insignificant sums, laid off into lots, blocks, streets and alleys, and sold at large figures by railroad and other booms, thus realizing millions to capitalists, whose only service consisted in advancing the means to purchase the site, the increased value being added by the settlement of the purchasers; and for that increased value which added many millions to the speculators' investment, the settlers are allowed to look to themselves entirely for the means of subsistence, business and employment. But under the co-operative system the increased value of the town lots and property generally, due to settlement and cultivation, will inure to the colonists, individually and as a whole. The town site, which will be laid off in 100,000 lots, will cost the colony, when fully paid for, about $80,000. Even at the nominal prices fixed by the colony, when all are sold, these

LOTS WILL REALIZE OVER $20,000,000.

As each member must be the owner of at least one share of stock and one lot interest, it becomes apparent that a large and rapidly increasing membership, such as the colony now enjoys, must necessarily guarantee a corresponding degree of financial thrift. But as the wealth accumulates the whole people become richer, and the public utilities, such as electric light and water works, accrue to the people as owners; and as monopolies and speculation are thus prevented, the community being established on an industrial basis, there must be a rapid and uniform prosperity among the people. How simple therefore is the change from capitalistic oppression to individual freedom and property. The people have only to combine their means and industry in this manner, and being true to each other, and to the "declaration of principles," there can be no doubt that such an association would move on with the harmony which belongs to a correct system and with the power of a social and industrial revolution.

VALE OF CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT.

It should be borne in mind that the labor employed not only creates its own wages, but creates also the premium which the enterprising proprietor receives for originating the employment. Viewed from this standpoint, there is a sense in which the labor so co-operating is hiring an employer—that is, it pays a premium to enterprise to originate and direct its employment. Now, the great majority of mankind do not originate employment for themselves. They either have not the ability or disposition to do so. Whatever may be the fault, it is true that the majority of mankind are employed by a very small minority, and it will always be found that this large majority pay very big wages to this small minority for bossing them. Suppose that each of 100 men, employed at any given work, produces in excess of his wages the value of $1 a day. This would, it is clear, give a profit of just $100 a day to their employer. There is no doubt that the same 100 men, by associating their effort and their credit, and possibly their money, could command sufficiency of that reserve force, which we call capital, to build the shop and purchase the material with which to start business. As between this outline of co-operation and the old system of permitting their labor to be hired by one man, it is clear that there is a difference in favor of co-operation which, in this case, would amount to $100 per day.

WEALTH AND ITS DISTRIBUTION.

The political economists and the communists have much to say concerning the distribution of wealth. Many writers upon the science of political economy have declared that it is the duty of the nation, first to encourage the creation of wealth, and second to direct and control its distribution. All such theories are delusive. The production of wealth is the result of agreement between employer and employed. Its distribution, therefore, will follow the law of its creation, or great injustice will be done. The individual who comes to you claiming that because you have more than himself you should divide a part of it with him, is claiming a per centage in your manhood, a share in your productive capacity. He is denying to you the right to produce, either by your own labor or by the employment of that of others which you have an equal right to do, more than a bare subsistence for yourself. The only distribution of wealth, which is the product of labor, and which will be honest, will come through a more equal distribution of the value of the productive capacity of men, and the co-operative principle leads directly to this consummation.

LEGISLATION AFFORDS NO REMEDY.

All legislative experiments in the way of making forcible distribution of the wealth produced in any country have failed. Their first effect has been to destroy wealth, to destroy productive industries, to paralyze enterprise and to inflict upon labor the greatest calamities it has ever encountered. So long as labor which is sufficiently intelligent to originate its own employment, consents to a voluntary servitude by paying a premium to the one who hires it, so long will the many remain comparatively poor. As at present organized, the industries of the world are under the direction of employers, and to this fact alone is attributed the great disparity of condition existing with reference to the possession of wealth. But

LABOR CAN BE ITS OWN EMPLOYER.

The Hon. Leland Stanford, one of the largest employers of labor on the Pacific slope, has introduced a bill in the U. S. Senate to facilitate the formation of co-operative labor associations. Although he is widely known as a great railway king and millionaire, he is also one of the ablest of American statesmen and a true philanthropist. His great experience with all classes of labor should give weight to his opinions on this subject. Mr. Stanford says: "The great advantage of labor arising out of co-operative effort has been apparent to me for many years. From my earliest acquaintance with the science of political economy it has been evident to my mind that capital was the product of labor; and I have always been fully persuaded that through co-operation labor could become its own employer. The investment and employment of capital is dependent entirely on the product of labor employed by it." The success of such labor associations in France, Britain and on the continent is well known. In fact society, taken as a whole, is in great measure a co-operative association, having in its municipal character a common fund and the enjoyment of certain property in common.

MORAL BENEFITS OF CO-OPERATION.

In addition to the many advantages and material prosperity which co-operation confers, there are great and significant benefits to come through it to the character of men. The employee is usually regarded by the employer merely in the light of his value as an operative. His productive capacity alone is taken into account. His character for honesty, truthfulness, good moral habits is disregarded, unless his bad habits interfere with the extent and quality of his services. But when men are about to enter partnership in the way of co-operation, the whole range of character comes under careful scrutiny. Each member of such an association being his own employer, works with interest and energy. Each has an interest in the other; in his health, sobriety, intelligence and competency, and each is a guard upon the others conduct. There would be no idling in a co-operative workshop. Each workman, being an employer, has a spur to his own industry, and also has a pecuniary reason for being watchful of the industry of his fellow-workmen. The character of man invariably rises with the assumption of higher responsibilities, and with the accession of men to the higher plane of becoming their own employers there may be expected a corresponding accession of more ambitious and interested activity and higher character.

No doubt the progress of this social industrial reform association will be closely watched by all the orthodox communities.

The Manufacture of Ribbons.

It is known that the manufacture of ribbons was fairly established in St. Etienne, France, in the eleventh century, and that the place remains to this day the principal center of the industry. During the persecution of the Huguenots in that country many of the St. Etienne operatives went to Basle, Switzerland, and established the industry there, where it became second only to St. Etienne. The third most important center was Coventry, Eng., but Crefeld and Vienna are also large producing centers. To-day there are manufactured in the United States quite as many ribbons as are made in St. Etienne. The product of Switzerland consists mainly of plain styles; that of France largely of fine and fancy millinery goods; that of Crefeld mainly of black silk and black velvet ribbons, the latter a specialty; that of England largely of plain goods; while the United States tries everything with much success, though dependent chiefly upon Europe for the lead in styles.

It is a curious fact that for 500 years ribbons were worn mostly by men rather than by women, especially during the long period of effeminacy in the male attire. In the fifteenth to the seventeenth centuries their use in England was restricted to the royalty and gentry by statute. In the time of Charles II and James II the whole attire was covered with ribbons. A fop in those days was described as "wearing more than would stock half a dozen shops or twenty country peddlers." It is another curious fact that in the manufacture of ribbons the self acting loom was in use 100 years before Cartwright's invention, and that in more recent times little new has been added in that branch of the silk industry.—Journal Fabrics.

Chart of Derelict Vessels

Another most important characteristic of the chart is the attention which is given to the positions of wrecked vessels. After a vessel has been abandoned—you know it seldom goes directly to the bottom. Almost submerged such "derelicts," as they have been called, will remain afloat for months. After the masts have disappeared there is seldom anything to indicate to approaching vessels that such a dangerous obstruction is in their paths. A collision with one of these waterlogged wrecks would simply mean instant destruction. So the hydrographic office requests each vessel to notify it of the location of these "derelicts." Their positions are then given in the monthly chart, and captains can be on the lookout and avoid them. May chart is dotted with such obstructions.

I have traced on these maps the course of a derelict for months. One in particular I remember. The schooner Twenty-one Friends was wrecked just off the Delaware capes last spring, two years ago. She drifted out into the gulf stream, was carried clear across to Ireland, and then being blown by the wind out of the influence of that ocean current, was carried toward the coast of Spain, where it was lost. I doubt not but that it formed fire wood for some of the Spaniards along the coast. Being lumber laden they must have secured a prize indeed. There are other interesting things which might be told about the hydrographic chart, but there isn't enough space here.—Observer in Philadelphia Call.

Cured of Hero Worship.

When Herbert Spencer was in this country a certain workingman admirer, who had acquired an intense hero worship of him, followed him many miles in order to enjoy the supreme honor of a recognition and grasp of the hand. He finally succeeded in surprising him among the Vermont hills and entered the parlor of his hotel while the nurse was absent. "Have I the honor at last of greeting Herbert Spencer?" said he. "That is my name," was the severe English reply. "I consider you the chief of human benefactors," continued the man, "and all the more do I congratulate you, now that our American publishers are able to produce such cheap editions of your grand books that they are reaching the humble homes of the poor, where they were formerly strangers." "But what becomes of the poor writer!" shouted Mr. Spencer as he arose in rage and turned upon his visitor. At this point the nurse rushed in and ejected the poor workingman, who, as he descended the back stairs, was followed by savage echoes of "Pirates! Pirates!" His hero had fallen with a crash, and he wondered in his disappointment and chagrin if there was anything left in this world that commercial considerations would not touch.—Boston Globe.

Soap in the Holy Land.

The introduction of soap is doing much to civilize the people of the Holy Land. A large soap factory has been established on the site of the ancient Bochem, and the people are beginning to use it on their persons instead of trying to eat it as they did at first. Along with the introduction of soap other reforms are going on. Bethelehem has been rebuilt, and the streets are lighted with gas. Cesarea is having a building boom. Nazareth is becoming the headquarters of big olive oil speculators. Corner lots in Joppa are going up with a rush, and real estate in Mount Carmel is largely held by speculators for an advance. The ladies of Jerusalem take all the Parisian fashion journals, and know all about the latest styles of hair dressing.—Exchange.

A Priest with a Mustache.

At the opening of the church at Cannes, built in memory of the late duke of Albany, the priest who read the lessons wore a mustache. The prince of Wales, to whom he was introduced, observing the hirsute appendage to the clerical upper lip, suggested that the ornament should be removed. The suggestion was carried out. The royal rebuke of a modern custom which some persons have adopted of wearing a mustache or shaving either cheek or chin or both is commendable. A priest should either shave clean or not shave at all. He should certainly not tribulate his face like a dragoon, attractive though it may be to the female portion of his congregation.—London Truth.

At the doors of the national Capitol of Mexico soldiers with fixed bayonets stand, and soldiers are distributed through the corridors.

THE WRITER OF BOOKS.

SOME OF THE TRIALS TO WHICH AN AUTHOR IS EXPOSED.

Struggle to Find a Publisher—Peculiarities of the Contract Between Author and Publisher—Royalty on the Work. Presentation Copies.

There is one vexation that the writer of books undergoes that has not been elucidated, namely, the requests he receives from friends for a copy of his work; and not only from friends, but from charitable institutions seeking to enlarge their libraries, or from institutions desirous of founding libraries. It is a common belief that an author is entitled to as many copies of his work as he sees fit to ask the publisher for. While flattering to the author's vanity to be thus in demand, the requests received even by authors of little renown, if honored, will often deprive him of all his profits from the copyright, for, beyond a stipulated number of copies given to him by the publisher, he has to pay the trade price for all other copies of his work. Generally inexperienced or unthinking authors "give away" with these presentation books all their profits, unless, indeed, a work reaches several editions.

At a round table gathering of authors, all of more or less prominence and popularity, in the Authors' club the other night, the general complaint was the nuisance of appeals for presentation copies from strangers and institutions not of the slightest interest to them. Each admitted that it was an infliction to their vanity to refuse or ignore many of these requests, while regretting the fact that compliance would entail pecuniary loss. The dramatic author, if he has the privilege from the management, may give passes to the theatre which is playing his production without entailing direct loss to either the manager or himself if there is not a large, popular demand of the seats, but the publisher of a book regards each volume as worth so much for old paper, and is not disposed to part with one without the quid pro quo, as even selling for junk adds just so much to the profits, and there is always a sale for old paper.

Each publishing house has a form of contract peculiar to itself in its style and phraseology, but the conditions are generally the same in this country. In England it is not uncommon for authors and publishers to bring out the works of the former on shares, equally dividing the profits and expenses, but in this country it is the rule that the publishers issue the work at their own risk and expense, paying the author a royalty on conditions named. The chief difference in the contracts of the publishers in this country is that the authors shall assign them the right to take out the copyright, or that the author himself shall hold it. In either case there is a stipulation to the effect that if at the expiration of a certain period, generally two years or five years, the publishers do not find the publication of the work profitable, they can discontinue, destroy the plates and sell the books on hand at auction or for old paper, giving the author the option of buying both at cost price or for a deduction of from 10 to 20 per cent., the copyright being assigned to him or restored to him.

In both countries a stipulated number of copies are given to the author; any more he can obtain under contract at the trade or retail price. This number varies from six to twelve copies, on which it is stipulated no royalty is to be paid, as also on the number distributed by the publisher in his discretion to the critics for review. In some cases the publisher reserves the right to exempt from royalty copies sent as samples to schools and institutions which might need the work. Statements are made to the author semi annually and the amount due him paid four months thereafter, and then if he has been libeled in complying with the requests from friends and institutions, he finds to his dismay that the credit balances the debit account and there is nothing coming to him, or mayhap that he is in debt to the publisher beyond the six or twelve copies allowed him.

Adding the deduction in his royalty on the work, if sold, and its cost to him to the mail expenses, the liberal or considerate author can consume the percentage coming to him from the publisher by complying with these requests. The account he receives is very explicit, and is divided into statements of books on hand at the last statement, books printed since the last statement, volumes given away or sold not subject to royalty and the balance on hand. Then follows a statement of the account with the author of books sold subject to royalty, sold subject to reduced royalty and sold to author. Every copy of the edition is accounted for, like the seats in a theatre when a return is made to the star. Editions, it may be stated, vary. Formerly an edition was reckoned at 1,000 copies. Many publishers issue 2,500 as an edition, although the edition really consists of the number of copies consecutively printed, and may run as high as 10,000. The author's royalty averages 10 per cent. on the retail price.

Other clauses in the contract which may interest the reader provide that the cost of alterations in the type or plates after the delivery of the manuscript above $50 are charged to the author if made by him; that no insurance on the work shall be effected on joint account; that if the plates or forms shall be rendered valueless by fire or otherwise the publisher has the option to reproduce them or surrender the copyright; that no royalty is to be paid on volumes destroyed by fire or water; that the author must share with the publisher the expense of any suit he may bring for infringement of copyright and as well receive an equal share of the profits arising therefrom; that the author or the heirs agree to renewals of the copyright under the same terms. In charging to the author alterations in the type or plates above $50 expenditure the publisher often saves himself from considerable expense, as many authors are inclined to completely rewrite their proof.

The main point in the publisher's agreement with the author in this country is that he shall publish the work at his own risk and expense, and compel him to share his loss if there is any. It is needless to add that the publisher never "gives away" any copies that will cost him anything in his accounting with the author. Usually works of travel or biography have a steady, if limited, permanent demand, while novels flourish for a season, and those unsold find their way to the junk shop. The plates are never destroyed as long as there is a prospect of a demand for the work. When the demand ceases the plates are melted for recasting, and frequently a demand springing up from some ephemeral cause the work is reset.—New York Times.

Music of the Wires.

Amusement was afforded a party of young people, visitors at the house of a wealthy gentleman on the heights of Brooklyn not long ago, when the weather was warm, permitting open windows, by the simple construction of three or four Æolian harps. There was the least stir of air, and the music produced was soft and sweet and very varied in its tones. The strings were of catgut and silver wire, drawn to full tension and were attached to drums of Japanese tom toms, which in turn were screwed against the window frames.—New York Times.

MUTABILITY.

In eastern annals we are told
This story of a king of old,
Whose hope was high, whose heart elate,
When fortune favored crown and state,
Whose spirit bowed in dark despair,
When adverse murmurs rent the air.

From those who to his smile aspired,
He as a birthday gift desired
A sentence brief to grace his ring
That solace and advice would bring.
Wise words were sought by sage and seer,
But naught could comfort him or cheer.

His daughter knelt before the throne,
And gave to him an emerald stone
On which was traced in letters bright,
"This, too, will pass." The maid was right;
Her choice of words so pleased the king,
He had them graven on his ring.

"This, too, will pass," he humbly said,
When fields were won and kingdoms spread,
"This, too, will pass," he meekly cried,
When treason's plots his patience tried,
And trusting in this sentence true,
Was free from joy or care undue.

WHEN WE WERE CHILDREN.

An Afternoon With Our Queer Cousins. The Family Teeth.

"I shall never forget the visits we used to make when we were children. Once in just so long we were particularly scrubbed and starched and sent down to spend an afternoon with the Rimers. It was dreary work enough, and for months I used to dread the visit. Mother always gave us straw to braid, and my sister and I and the two Rimer children, first of all, sat in straight chairs, with our feet dangling, and braided our 'stent.' Then there was one book, 'Jack the Giant Killer,' that we looked at, listlessly enough, for we knew every word and every picture by heart. After Jack we were permitted to examine two small toy bureaus with glass doors. Then we might walk slowly five times about the tiny flower garden paths and see the balm and candytuft. We must not move beyond a slow pace or something might happen to our clean 'tires.' These tires we all wore; they were of gingham, and completely covered our dresses, and were so stiff with starch that they stood out like pasteboard around us and crackled when removed.

"By the time we had walked about the garden in this way it would be about half after 4, and supper was at 5 invariably. We went into the house and were now entertained in a curious way. As a great treat we were shown the teeth which had been extracted from the jaws of the Rimer family from youth up; even the grinders which Mr. Rimer's first wife had lost when in the flesh were among the collection. All had been carefully preserved. There were teeth with immense roots, some of them curved; these last, we were told, 'come awful hard,' and had to be taken with 'rollers.' To this day I have the strangest idea as to what rollers may be.

There were milk teeth without any roots; some of these Julia and Clara Rimer selected with triumph, for they had been taken from their own mouths, and they endeavored to illustrate the operations. I saw that these teeth were a source of deep and constant interest to the Rimer children as well as to their mother, and I used to wonder why we had no such assortment to display to our visitors. I once suggested to my mother that she begin the forming of this kind of a museum, and when she said she did not think it was worth while, I responded that she mustn't make us have the Rimer children visit us then, for teeth were what amused them most and we had none to show them. I heard so many times all the particulars of the pulling of the biggest teeth, that I could even now tell each story without missing a word, and I could attach each story to its proper tooth.

"After this appetizing occupation supper came, and after supper we went home, starting out hand in hand, and going with unconscious staidness until we were up the hill and out of sight of the house, when we began to frisk, and in the next few minutes I am afraid we mussed our tires more than in the whole afternoon previous."—New York Tribune.

Austrian Military Music.

The Austrian martial music is the most inspiring in the world. I say this with the full remembrance of having seen and heard, in the year '64, a Massachusetts regiment, 2,000 strong, marching to the strains of "John Brown's Body Lies Moldering in the Ground," and singing, too, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's superb paraphrase of that peculiar lyric; and at the time I thought I had never listened to anything finer.

But, on reflection, the palm, I should say, must be awarded to the Tedeschi. Their bands seem to discourse the tunefulness of Mozart allied with the sprightliness of Strauss, and one of the few and infinitesimally small things that make the friend of Italy regret the liberation of Venice from the Austrian yoke is the disappearance of the Austrian military bands from the Piazza San Marco. What delicious marches and "retreats" the Croats and the Hungarians used to play! what prodigious "swells" were the Kaiser's officers in their white tunics, their crimson pantaloons and their white kid gloves! and what famous times one used to have at the Cafe Florian listening to the interlopers' music over a granito ice that cost twopence halfpenny and a "Virginia" cigar dear at three farthings! One had not time to bestow a thought on the patriotic gondolier grinding his teeth on the Molo and quite forgetting to chant strophes from Tasso (if he ever quoted them), muttering wrathfully "Va fuori, d'Italia, Straniero!" The stranger is gone and joy go with him, but modern Italian military music lacks color and brilliance. —Illustrated London News.

Mr. George W. Childs' Employes.

By his employes Mr. George W. Childs is fairly idolized; yet he demands of every man the full measure of his duty, but he pays the best of wages. His rule is that every man should receive more than enough for a living—receive a compensation enabling him to lay something by for a rainy day. He encourages thrift and providence among all in his employ. He surrounds them with every comfort, introduces for their benefit every appliance conducive to health, and annually, at Christmas time, every person in his employ is substantially remembered.—Washington Craftsman.

An Experimental Suicide.

A Paris cabman who committed suicide the other day left the following explanatory note: "I leave this world because it pleases me to do so. I have had enough of driving other people about in this world. I am going to see if in the other world people drive differently. All I ask is that no fuss may be made about me."—Chicago Herald.

We have just been reading about the distribution of the profits on a $1.50 book. On the first 1,000 the stereotyper loses six cents per copy, the publisher loses eighteen cents, the author loses ten cents, the printer loses his time and the reader loses his patience. You see there isn't really very much made on the first 1,000; the profits develop more fully on the succeeding thousands. Suppose, for instance, you decide to publish an edition of 5,000; you lose $100 on the first 1,000. Then you change your mind and don't publish the other 4,000. You make $400 on them, a clear profit of $300 net. You can't see it? Well, don't you ever publish a book, then, that's all; you haven't the real author's instinct; you have no genius.—Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

RARE AND BEAUTIFUL.

CHAT WITH A RECENTLY RETURNED ORCHID COLLECTOR.

Gathering the Weird and Eccentric Developments of the Floral Kingdom. Life Among Savages—Beginning of a Craze for Orchids.

It was my good fortune to meet in Mr. Bergman's greenhouses a world renowned discoverer and dealer in these weird and eccentric developments of the floral kingdom, Mr. Fredrico Man, who has just returned from his annual trip to South America in quest of orchids, bringing with him a ship load of the coveted buds, tropical ferns and the flowering onion for the New York and Brooklyn markets, as well as for those of London, Paris and Berlin. Fifty thousand orchids of this importation are in Mr. Bergman's care. Some half dozen men were busily opening the crates in which the plants were boxed, while others had already found place in the greenhouses among those already cultivated by the florist. Some tropical birds brought by the merchant in orchids seemed to have found a fitting home in such surroundings. As Mr. Man talked of his methods of trade I cannot do better in this direction than to repeat some portions of it in answer to the queries propounded by his curious visitors on this occasion, and as nearly as possible in his own language.

"You see," said he, "I have been visiting South America for some ten or twelve years on purpose to obtain orchids from the forests of Brazil, the United States of Colombia and elsewhere. I have my own servants, guides, etc., who are ready to meet me on arrival. We travel 1,000 miles into the interior, perhaps, before beginning operations. Of course I take an interpreter with me, as in all my journeys I have not learned the low mixture of languages spoken by the natives."

FOES TO BE FEARED.

"Are you not timid amid such a rude people?"

"Oh, no; my guides and myself are well armed. The foes we have most to fear are the reptiles and wild animals."

"And how do you defend yourself against them?"

"We travel by boat and on muleback when we can, and sometimes through almost impenetrable forests, but at night we have one rule for shelter and protection. Three fires are made and our hut placed in the triangular space between them. There are many tigers in the Brazilian forests, and as for snakes—well, I could spend hours telling you of them. I brought home the skin of one thirty feet long. Here on my thumb is the scar of a reptile"——

"Don't tell us more of the snakes," said Mr. Man's audience.

"No, no, it is of the orchids you want to know. Well, orchids are parasites. They grow on rocks and trees and are fed by the moisture in the atmosphere, although there are orchids that grow in the earth. They are found in all countries, and the rarest and most beautiful are the parasites. The natives of South America are very fond of them, cultivate them around their dwellings and call them fleur de santus, the flower of health. Sometimes a gorgeous flower is seen on the top of a forest tree, which is only obtainable by cutting down the tree; sometimes they are found near the summits of mountains 10,000 or 12,000 feet high, as some species grow where it is cold and near the snows, and others where the heat is constant and almost overpowering."

"How do you transport these gatherings of orchids?"

"At times the natives carry them, but usually on muleback to some sea port, and no freight is more costly, as the wooden crates in which they are packed must be so arranged as to give the plants air."

BEGINNING OF A CRAZE.

"Are many orchids sold in this country?" asked the writer.

"Oh, yes, there is the beginning of a craze for them in the United States, but as yet not at all in comparison to that which exists in England, France and Germany. It is becoming the fashionable flower here as well as there for decorations, for dinner parties, for brides' bouquets, etc."

"Are these flowers very expensive?"

"Decidedly. A small bouquet of them may represent $25. In England the wealthy people will give almost any price for a new orchid."

"How long have they been known there?"

"About 130 years, perhaps a little more; a missionary to India sent some specimens home and sea captains brought them from South America, the South Sea Islands, Mexico, Porto Rico and elsewhere. The English people liked them and gradually they have grown into great favor till the mania for them resembles the craze that once existed in Europe for the black tulip. Agents are sent everywhere that orchids are indigenous for new varieties. I have myself discovered seventeen new varieties. Baron Shroder, who resides near London, has the finest collection in the world; the Duke of Marlborough has many rare varieties and so has Baron Rothschild. It was in Boston that orchids first found favor in this country. Mr. Jay Gould has a splendid collection in his greenhouses near Tarrytown on the Hudson; Mr. Corning, of Albany, has the most extensive collection this side of the ocean, and Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt is beginning to purchase them for his place in Newport."—Brooklyn Eagle.

New York's "Special Sessions" Audience.

The pleasure of being a witness took me to the court of special sessions not long ago. It was a merry morning. The jail yard, where a murderer had just been hanged, was full of sunlight and playful breezes. The jail pigeons strutted and cooed in the sun. The temple of justice was cool and gray, as a temple should be, but the audience was clammy and uncomfortable, and even the judges had a flush upon their faces. It seemed almost as if some phantom from the gallows outside was in the place, and the peculiar atmosphere that the court possesses had a cemetery savor to the nostrils—or at least to mine.

Somebody ought to paint a picture of a special sessions audience. The benches present a curious variety of characters that would furnish an artist with ample material. I do not suppose any one would want to buy the picture when it was done, but few would pass it by without a halt. The brutal, cunning or debased faces of the average lookers on attend the proceedings at the bar with the same eager, craving intentness as one may imagine of the audience at a combat in the arena of old Rome. It is an act of their own lives to them, no doubt, and none knows who among them will next be called upon the stage.

From time to time, on the morning I write of, when the door of the court room would open, you could hear the whining of a dog. When I went out a stalwart young tough was standing in the deep portico, with a little white bull terrier in a chain. As I pushed the door open I heard some one behind me say "guilty." I looked back. There was a man being led from the bar by a policeman. The audience was devouring him with hungry interest. "Guilty" repeated the murmur. The dog strained at its chain and howled till the black roof rang. Then the jail gate clanged between brute, beast and brute master, and I went forth into the fresh air that made me feel like a new man.—Alfred Trumble in New York News.

On the Way.

The British bark Peushaw, Hongkong to Victoria, 30th May, took 8,002 bags paddy rice, 1,900 bags rice, 1,239 packages tea, (unknown), 15 boxes opium, 130 boxes oil, 41 boxes fire crackers, 41 boxes Chinaware, 1,219 boxes Samshoo, 10 bags peas, 52 boxes flour, 179 packages Soy, 110 bags beans, 2 boxes fireworks, 844 packages merchandise.

Bogus Papers.

The examination of the certificates in the possession of the Chinese who arrived last night resulted in three bogus papers being found. The holders will be held in custody till the $50 head tax is paid.

The Parthia.

On the arrival of the S. S. Parthia in Vancouver an address was presented to Captain Brough by the passengers expressing their appreciation of his efforts to make the voyage comfortable and referring to the suitableness of the Parthia for the service. Successive head winds were experienced during the voyage. The following is the list of passengers: The Marquis and Marchioness of Huntly and two European servants, E J Brook, Mr and Mrs J K Cunningham, 6 children and 2 native servants, Dr and Mrs R E Campbell, Mr M Cooper, A H Dawbarn, W C Dawe, Captain W N Deane, George D McKay, E J Beaumont Nesbitt, V J Watney and servant, B Roth, C Watney, H S Wilkinson, Rev and Mrs E R Woodman, four children and native servant, C Parnell and P. Walton. Total number of first-class passengers, 37. The Chinese passengers numbered 100, billed for the following ports: Port Townsend 3, San Francisco 17, Portland 10, New York 27, Victoria 32½ (one boy) and 9 Victoria merchants returning from a visit to China. There were also 10 Japanese for New York. The cargo consisted of 35,472 pkgs. tea, 21 pkgs. silk, 6615 pkgs curios and rice.

A gentleman who came over on the S. S. Parthia states that it was possible the S. S. Batavia would not be ready in time to sail for Vancouver on the time card, and it was rumored that the S. S. Augusta had been chartered to take her place for this trip. The Augusta is a smaller vessel than the Batavia, but will carry fully as much freight.

A Pleasant Re-union.

One of the most pleasant affairs in connection with Vancouver's festivities was the St. George's dinner held in the Greyhound hotel on Saturday night last. The spread provided by Messrs. Cole & Musgrave was a most excellent one, and enjoyed by all present. Mr. Porter, President of the Vancouver St. George's Society, occupied the chair, and Mr. Sumner the vice. Amongst those present were Mr. Chas. Semlin, M. P. P., Mr. Townsend, President of the New Westminster society, and Mr. Sam. Brighouse, and about forty others. The table was nicely decorated, and the menu furnished by mine host was excellent, and spoke volumes for the quality of the house. After the opening remarks of the chairman the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were drank, after which followed the Mayor and Corporation, Trade and Commerce, St. George's Society, The Pioneers, Army and Navy, Learned Professions, the Ladies and the Press. The toasts were all responded to in appropriate speeches, and between each toast a song was sung which enlivened the proceedings and kept the whole company in a happy vein. Shortly before midnight the dinner was brought to a successful close by the whole company singing "God Save the Queen."

Increased Duty on Opium.

The recent increase of $1 per pound upon crude opium imported into the Dominion, it is believed, will have the effect of stopping to a great extent the smuggling of the drug into the United States. A considerable amount of money is invested in this city in appliances for cooking and refining opium for the market, and the new duty on the crude article will so increase the cost of it in the refined state that the Chinese will not care to take the risk of attempting to smuggled it. The news of the increase produced quite a commmotion upon the opium merchants of Chinatown.

Leech River.

Several parties are prospecting this stream and its branches. Some are prospecting for quartz while others are looking for gravel diggings. One company on the river are fluming and have fair prospects of being well remunerated for their outlay and labor. On San Juan river there is a company of miners engaged in prospecting one of the bars. They have found sufficient gold to induce them to put on sluices and go to work in a proper manner to thoroughly test their ground.

From M. Sullivan, M. D., President of the Medical Association of Canada: Kingston, Oct. 19, 1883.—From conversations with Mr. Laurance, examination of his accurate, varied and highly finished glasses, together with observation of cases benefitted, I have pleasure in strongly recommending him as a gentleman worthy of entire confidence. M. SULLIVAN, M. D. B. Laurance's spectacles sold only by D. E. Campbell, Fort street.

Clarke's Extradition.

A San Francisco dispatch of the 1st inst., states that papers from Washington, signed by the President and Secretary of State, for the extradition of Alexander P. Clarke, the Truckee forger, held at Victoria, have been received by Henry N. Morse. Detective Jerome Deasy will go after Clarke on the next steamer.

THE ORIENTAL SERVICE.

Vancouver to Yokohama and Hongkong—The Mail Subsidy.

It is reported that the tender of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the mail is as follows: It has offered to contract for the ocean service at a speed of 15 instead of 11 knots, and to build its boats under Admiralty supervision, so that they may be readily converted into armed cruisers, for a subsidy of £10,000 per annum. In addition to this it also offers to carry China and Japan mails for 3,500 miles across the continent of America free of charge, also to carry troops and government stores over the same distance of land and over the ocean at cost price, thus making the route an Imperial highway. The subsidy is calculated on the price per mile which the British government pays the Peninsular and Oriental company for the voyage of India and China mails via Suez, and by this estimate the amount in subsidy for fortnightly service each way between Vancouver and Hongkong would be £105,000 per annum. The other tender, that of the Morgan company, asks for the Pacific service alone to be performed at a speed of 11 knots. There are, of course, in this latter tender none of the advantages offered in the application by the Canadian Pacific Railroad with regard to land carriage.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this and business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember! No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

From the Flowery Kingdom.

Among the passengers by the Yosemite last night were 38 Chinese, who had come over from China on the Parthia for this city. A few were merchants returning from a visit to the Flowery Kingdom, but the majority were new arrivals. All were provided with certificates. These the customs officials refused to accept without a careful examination, and all, excepting a few who paid the $50 head tax under protest, were detained during the night in charge of a watchman. This morning they were marched up to the custom house in double file by the sub-collector to undergo an examination of themselves and their certificates by Mr. Gardner, interpreter.

Information Wanted.

The Providence, R. I., Chief of Police has written to Supt. Bloomfield enquiring on behalf of his friends for one John Sim, a native of that city, who has resided here at one time or other. Sim is a young man about 25 years of age, dark complexion and medium height. A man of the same name was killed in the Nanaimo explosion and whether it was the party enquired for or not his friends would like to learn. Anyone who knows anything about the young man should communicate with Superintendent Bloomfield.

New Westminster District.

The Ottawa Free Press is authority for the statement that Mr. D. H. Chisholm's seat will become vacant before next session. He says he was by no means pleased with his parliamentary experiences of last session, is averse to the turmoil of politics, and finds the work thrown upon him as a member much greater than he anticipated."

Highland Dancing.

The remarks in yesterday's TIMES anent the awards for Highland dancing at the Caledonian picnic have given rise to some discussion amongst our Scottish friends who are votaries of terpsichore. So far as Mr. Donald McKay is concerned nothing could be more graceful than his steps—both in the fling and the strathspeys. But when his numerous friends claim that his was the only correct fling dancing competent judges most distinctly dissent from such an assumption. We believe Mr. McKay himself will not claim that he was dancing the orthodox favorite Highland fling. Mr. McKay acquitted himself admirably, for, although well up in years, he is still as youthful and agile on his feet as if he were still in his teens. The applause which invariably greets him as he steps on the "boards" bedecked in his Highland garb is proof that his stepping it on the light fantastic is appreciated by his many admirers in this city. Teachers, however, should distinguish between strathspeys and the correct fling when instructing the youth and the novices in this city.

Chinese Women.

Among the Chinese who arrived by the Parthia for this city were eight females presumably brought here by procuresses for purposes of prostitution. A Chinese beauty who arrived here on the last San Francisco steamer is said to have been up to $1400 already; and as she has not yet been knocked down it is inferred that the upset price of the old hag who holds her is something beyond that figure. These girls are said to be purchased in China for about $100. Their passage out costs $60, and the head tax is $50 so that it will be seen from a monetary standpoint there is a strong inducement for the unscrupulous to engage in this nefarious traffic in Chinese girls. These people do not come of their own accord but are brought and held in slavery a fact which of itself should arouse enlightened humanity against such iniquity. Besides as it is reasonable to suppose that the better class of Chinese women are kept away by the presence of large numbers of prostitutes it is not only worth while but it is the bounden duty of the authorities to do what they can to stop the nefarious commerce.

Our Manufactures Abroad.

To-day a shipment of soap was made by the British Columbia soap works to St. John, N. B. A sample was sent there some time since as a test lot. The result was so satisfactory that a considerable order was received by Messrs. Pendray & Co. This firm claim that were freight rates to Winnipeg and intermediate points at all reasonable they could supply that vast section with an article giving the best of satisfaction in every respect. The prevailing rates debar them from a market which is theirs legitimately.
